

Diary of a Wimpy Kid Read-Alikes!

Try these books while you wait for the next in the Diary of a Wimpy Kid series by Jeff Kinney, released in January 2009.

Frannie K. Stein series by Kim Benton

Franny K. Stein is a mad scientist! She's smart, a little odd, and conducts interesting experiments to change things she doesn't like.

Middle School is Worse than Meatloaf by Jennifer Holm
Ginny's story of her difficult year in 7th Grade is told through a collage of instant messages, cards, diary entries, and more.

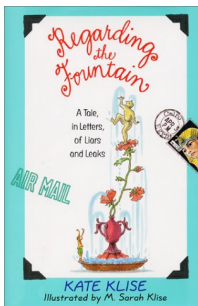

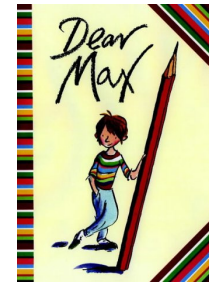

Prince of Underwhere by Bruce Hale

The author of the Chet Gecko series is at it again, this time with a different kind of hero. Zeke has to deal with bullies, a perfect twin sister, a mean cousin, missing parents, roaming zombies, and people who wear underwear on their heads.

Dear Max by Sally Grindley

Max exchanges letters with his favorite and very famous author, and the two become more good friends than just pen-pals.

Regarding the Fountains by Kate Klise

This novel is about an artist who is asked to replace a broken fountain and who ends up with a lot of fifth grade friends with some fabulous ideas for the most unique fountain ever. Faxes, letters, and drawings make up this a unique and interesting tale.

You might also like:

The Clarice Bean series by Lauren Child

Lawn Boy by Gary Paulsen

Amelia's Notebooks by Marissa Moss

The Legend of Spud Murphy by Eoin Colfer

Heads or Tails: Stories from Sixth Grade by Jack Gantos

The Lucy Rose series by Katy Kelly

The True Meaning of Smekday by Adam Rex (5th grade and up)

The Homework Machine by Dan Gutman

Schooled by Gordon Korman (5th grade and up)