

Book Club in a Bag

Online Resource Guide

Barnes and Noble Online Book Clubs

<http://bookclubs.barnesandnoble.com>

Full of useful information about books being discussed online – this is a great place to get ideas.

Book Browse: Your Guide to Exceptional Books

<http://bookbrowse.com/bookclubs/>

An excellent resource for both first-time and experienced leaders of book discussions.

Book Rags

<http://www.bookrags.com>

A research site for students with over 8 million pages of literature summaries, biographies, literary criticism, etc.

LitLovers: A Well-Read Online Community

<http://www.litlovers.com>

An online community dedicated to books and book clubs with information on book selection, discussion questions, and book club ideas.

NoveList

<http://lagrangelibrary.org>

From the library's website click "Research Tools" on the left of the homepage, then "List of Databases" from the drop-down menu. Select NoveList from the choices and enter your library card number in the space provided. From NoveList's homepage, select "Book Discussion Guides" under "Adults" on the left side for a numerous suggestions and helpful hints.

Reading Group Choices

<http://readinggroupchoices.com>

Another site with suggested titles, author interviews, advice for starting a discussion group, etc.

ReadingGroupGuides: The Online Community for Reading Groups

<http://www.readinggroupguides.com>

Discussion questions, plot summaries, author biographies and interviews.

Many authors maintain their own websites which can give insight into their books. In addition, publishers provide book discussion guides which can be found on their websites. You can find these websites through a search engine such as Google.